Drinking binge kills Alberta teenager

PHILIP CROUCHER IN HALIFAX

A 19-year-old Alberta teen found unconscious after a night of drinking at Acadia University in Wolfville, N.S., has died.

The RCMP were called to the campus around 12:30 a.m. Tuesday and found the first-year student, reported to be from Calgary, not breathing in a dorm room.

Police spokesperson Sgt. Brigdit Leger said officers learned Thursday afternoon the teen had died, and his body was being kept on life support so his organs could be donated for transplant. "The RCMP does not suspect foul play," Leger said.

An Acadia student told the CBC students were drinking in the university residence. The student said the victim had a 40-ounce bottle of liquor and drank almost all of it without mix. An autopsy was expected on Friday.

"This tragic accident is a reminder to all of us how fragile life can be and how quickly future promise can be replaced by grief and sadness."

Tory contender in email debacle

Ted Morton considered a frontrunner to lead party The candidates took part in a debate at Calgary's Red and White club Wednesday night

Tory leadership candidate Ted Morton is being investigated by Alberta's Information and Privacy Commissioner.

It's alleged he improperly shredded government documents and used a separate email account to thwart freedom of information searches.

Privacy Commissioner Frank Work decided on his own to investigate the allegations contained in a report by the CBC, a spokesperson said Thursday.

"I think what the commissioner is concerned about here is, are these secondary email accounts being set up and used in a method so that you can avoid a FOIP (Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy) request," said Wayne Wood.

"That's kind of what got his curiosity up and that's what he wants some answers to."

The investigation will now hang over Morton, former finance minister, when the party votes Sept. 17 to pick a new party leader to replace Premier Ed Stelmach.

He said if Work finds any malfeasance or evidence of deliberate obstruction, it could lead to a formal obstruction charge and the file would be passed to the Justice Department.

Probe begins

- Wood said the investigation would begin immediately, but wasn't sure when it would wrap up.
- Morton told Edmonton radio station CHED that having a second email address is normal for politicians and other public figures.
- Current premier Ed Stelmach did indicate he had a second email address, too

Alberta remembers 9-11

Stacey McIntyre

I was in downtown Toronto at the office. My sister called me and asked me if I had heard the news. She heard it on the radio on her commute in to work. I went to work early that day and took transit, so I was unaware until then.

My colleagues and I gathered in the boardroom and watched live footage. I can still see and hear the terrified and desperate people jumping from the towers, believing that was the best solution.

The company decided to evacuate and send everyone home because the office was close to the financial district.

To this day if I think about it too long I start crying like I was on the day it happened.

Alexandra Ianculescu

We were on a plane on the way to Canada. Emigrating from Romania. They turned the plane around in the middle of the ocean, 'cause all airports were closed.

Then we watched what was happening on the TVs on the chairs in front of us. We got to Bucharest and lost our luggage and returned 14 days later :)

Patricia Taylor

I was in Grade 9 when it happened. I remember waking up to the sounds of sirens and asking my mum if they were in real life or on the radio.

She said the radio and I turned on the news just before the second tower got hit. I was stunned.

Our first class at school, all we did was listen to the radio as they updated each occurrence. When I got home CNN was all over it, so I spent the rest of the day into the night watching the news.

Rozzie Lee

I was getting ready for school in the morning when I heard on the radio about the first plane crashing into the first tower in New York.

My 11th-grade self knew it was something big, but little did I know how much worse it would get. Social studies class, my teacher told us how this will be a day in history that will never be forgotten.

Diane Werbisky

That day is permanently emblazoned in my mind. I had gotten up and was preparing for my morning shower. I turned on my radio. It happened to be in the middle of a broadcast of this horrific incident of an airplane crashing into a skyscraper.

I had no idea where this had happened, but thought it was somewhere in Europe or the Middle East.

I was gazing out of my window at the Rockies, horror-struck by the thousands of deaths. As more info came through and I found out more details and where it had happened, I was now crying, and denial was setting in. Like millions of others, I was glued to my radio and later to the TV.

I am still horrified when I remember that day and the devastation of the minds and souls of anyone who had lost loved ones or their innocence on that day.

Heather Bray

I was going to my 8 a.m. psychology class at the University of Lethbridge.

I lived away from home for the first time, and was pretty impressed with myself so being so independent. Life was easy, exciting and new.

I couldn't even digest what had happened till later that day, my small world crushed by the big, real world.

Steve Shrout, publisher Metro daily newspaper in Calgary, Edmonton and Winnipeg

I remember I was standing in the newsroom at the Lethbridge Herald, watching CNN's live coverage in total disbelief as the second plane found its target.

That's when I realized this was an intentional act. I saw it all unfold in real time. Within seconds photos were screaming across the wire, and we couldn't look away from the images.

The graphic portrayal of death and the tragic expressions of those who survived have changed me forever. Remembering 9-11.

METRO LIVE WIRE

Cheryl Bernard
Calgary native and Olympic curling silver medalist

I remember working from home that day and watching the TV screen in my office.... All I thought of was the people, the families and the lives lost. (Though) I was not directly affected by the tragedy, I believe we all changed that day. We think differently, we trust people less, we are more suspicious.

Naheed Nenshi
Calgary mayor

Sept. 11, 2001, I had just moved back to Calgary about three weeks prior, and I remember getting a phone call from my uncle in Vancouver, who is an early riser, saying "Get out of bed, turn the TV on right now." What was interesting was that on that particular day city council had scheduled a public hearing on the issue of Enmax. They didn't end up cancelling that hearing. So after spending the morning watching the news reports, I decided to take my mind off things and attend my very first city public hearing.

Craig Conroy
Calgary Flames special assistant to the GM

I awoke and I was getting ready and it was the first day of training camp and we were going to go to Banff. I remember getting up and watching the TV and thinking how weird it was that one of the Twin Towers was on fire.... I saw the second plane come in. I could not believe what I was seeing. It was shock.

CITY HALL

Nenshi stern on fire cuts

JEREMY NOLAIS
@METRONEWS.CA

One day after Calgary's fire chief warned budget cuts could see two city halls closed and up to 40 jobs lost, Mayor Naheed Nenshi refused to speak directly to the concerns.

"I am not really interested in negotiating through the media on this," he said Thursday.

Fire Chief Bruce Burrell told reporters Wednesday that his department is already behind on key benchmarks for response times due to city growth and is now being asked to shave $7.9 million from its budget over the next three years.

The mayor did point out every city department is being asked to analyze potential areas to improve efficiency within their respective budgets and said hardly any jobs have been lost to date.

"Every department is getting an increase to cover any increases in salaries," Nenshi noted. "We have asked every department, 'Geez, can you find a way to spend three or four per cent less?' I think that's a perfectly legitimate question to ask."

Burrell said his department fields 160 per cent more calls today than in 1980, but has only expanded 29 per cent over that same period.

LAW OFFERS NEW DISTRACTIONS

IN DEFENCE OF ...

MIKE MORRISON
METRO CALGARY

"Like with alcohol, being cut off immediately has caused dangerous side effects such as shaking and listening to local radio. I've also found myself playing Angry Birds at times when I wouldn't normally."

It's been just over a week since Alberta became the latest province to introduce laws against distracted driving. And even though we've had months to prepare, putting the law into practice has been harder than I expected.

Realizing that you'll never be able to rehearse the recorder again or eat a lobster dinner while driving on Memorial Drive is one thing, but what I didn't anticipate was how the new law would affect so many other facets of my life.

In the past eight days, I've learned that I'm a creature of habit. Like biting my nails, playing Angry Birds while coasting down Macleod trail had become a part of my daily routine. But with police on the lookout, I no longer feel safe endlessly playing one of my phone's most addictive games.

Like with alcohol, being cut off immediately has caused dangerous side effects such as shaking and listening to local radio. I've also found myself playing Angry Birds at times when I wouldn't normally. I'm also playing more at home, which means I've had to sacrifice things like friends, laundry, dating, eating and calling my mother.

When the government decided to implement this law, were things like my social life even considered? Sadly, I don't think it was.

I know that the new law is meant to keep us from being distracted on the roadways, but with my phone safely tucked into my glove compartment, I now found myself being distracted by everyone else instead.

Where before I'd be busy uploading photos to Instagram, I'm now busier than ever guessing what movie those kids are watching in the back seat, or what song is that person trying to lip-synch to. More often than not, I'm left with one lingering question: Why do so many grown-ups have Loony Tunes stuffed animals in their back windows?

While the distracted driving law has lots to do with safety on the road, it's definitely having a ripple effect elsewhere.

I'm not sure why, but Calgarians seem to think that they must now always wear a hands-free device, whether they are in a car or not. I've read the law and there's no need to use a device when you are walking down the street, eating in a food court or picking up your groceries.

Before last week, I could usually tell who might be off their rocker and who wasn't, but now I just hand out money to anyone that looks like they are talking to themselves. Not only is this new law disrupting my routine, it's also getting very expensive.

▶ Boy went missing from his home during the night ▶ Suspect in Amber Alert case has extensive criminal record including sex assault

The man at the centre of the dramatic search for a three-year-old boy who disappeared from his home in a small British Columbia town has an extensive criminal record, including a conviction for sexual assault that dates back to the 1980s.

Kienan Hebert disappeared from his home in Sparwood some time between Tuesday night and Wednesday morning, setting off a frantic search of the surrounding area and then an Amber Alert, which was issued Wednesday evening.

The Amber Alert named Randall Hopley, 46, as a "suspect," and the RCMP have said they're hoping to speak to him about the boy's disappearance. He is believed to be driving a brown 1987 Toyota Camry with the licence plate 098RAL.

▶ Kienan Hebert

Hopley, who police say has no known connection to the boy, has a criminal record that covers most of his adult life and is currently on probation.

Amber Alert messages were broadcast throughout B.C. as far away as Vancouver, where display screens on transit buses and the city's SkyTrain system urged the public to tune into local radio stations.

Kienan was last seen Tuesday evening when he was put to bed in the family home. He was described by police as a red-haired Caucasian boy who was last seen wearing a blue pair of Scooby Doo boxer shorts.

▶ Randall Hopley

Kienan's father, Paul Hebert, said he was holding out hope that his son will soon be back at home safe and sound.

"Everyone's on hand, the professionals are doing what they can do, and we just have faith that Kienan will be coming back home and safe," he told reporters Thursday morning.

Man jailed for large child-porn collection

A man from Sylvan Lake, Alta., who had one of the largest collections of child pornography ever seen in the province has been sentenced to six years behind bars.

At his sentencing hearing Wednesday, court heard Andrew Tettersell had almost 38,000 pictures and more than 3,000 videos on his computers, cellphone and camera when police seized them last fall.

Mayor Nenshi brings urban issues online

New website launched with survey answers from Tory leadership candidates ◐ Mayor optimistic new leader could offer better deal for big cities

JEREMY NOLAIS
@METRONEWS.CA

Stressing for months that big-city issues are being overlooked by Tory leadership contenders, Calgary Mayor Naheed Nenshi took a bold step into cyberspace Thursday to make his point heard.

Citiesmatter.ca is now up and running with survey answers to key urban issues from Tory contenders Doug Griffiths, Gary Mar, Rick Orman and Alison Redford.

Fellow leadership hopefuls Doug Horner and Ted Morton were also urged to provide their input but missed repeated deadlines, Nenshi said.

The mayor said he is particularly interested in learning how the candidates plan to help wean Calgary of its property-tax dependency.

"We have got to find better ways of raising money for the city," Nenshi said. "I have long said the property tax is regressive."

Based on their responses, both Griffiths and Redford appear to support granting big cities new taxation powers — something that Nenshi has expressed support for.

Scott Hennig with the Canadian Taxpayers Federation, however, urged caution, noting the City of Toronto was granted similar measures a few years ago.

"It resulted in the people of Toronto paying a lot more taxes overall," he said.

Mar, meanwhile, has said he would hand back the education portion of property tax back to municipalities.

Orman said he is willing to explore improvements to municipal infrastructure funding.

Secure windows, parents urged

Parents may want to think twice before leaving their windows wide open.

In the past five weeks, 12 children have been treated for injuries after falling out of windows, according to Alberta Health Services.

Some of the injuries included skull fractures, brain injuries and broken bones, with most of the injuries occurring to children from the ages of two and four. The number of injuries is much higher than in previous years, and the staff at the Alberta Children's Hospital are urging parents to child-proof their windows. METRO

Province ponies up for houses

METRO FILE

Alberta exceeds its target of 11,000 affordable homes

The Alberta government has announced a list of 15 new projects that will get funding to build affordable housing.

Housing Minister Jonathan Denis says most of the units are provided at 10 per cent below market value.

"Our cost-conscious approach with our partners — including the private sector — has saved taxpayers $1.05 billion while helping to meet the housing needs of lower-income Albertans in 62 communities," Denis said in a statement.

The province is contributing $74 million, which is being matched by groups all across the province.

That money, says the government, will build 764 housing units for about 1,500 Albertans.

Grants

- The grants are through the 2011-12 Housing Capital Initiatives program.
- The target of developing 11,000 housing units was set in response to recommendations from the Alberta Affordable Housing Task Force.

In 2007, Premier Ed Stelmach called for a task force to recommend how to make affordable housing, both rented and owned, more available and accessible, and to have a positive impact on Alberta's competitiveness.

The province set a target of building 11,000 housing units, and Stelmach says with the funding announced today, the number will be more than 11,600. THE CANADIAN PRESS

COURT

New sentence expected in death of newborn

The Crown wants an Alberta woman who strangled her baby after secretly giving birth in her parents' basement to spend four years in prison.

But the defence argues Katrina Effert should be given a suspended sentence of probation, because the offence for which she was actually convicted rarely merits jail time.

Over the last six years, Effert has been twice convicted of second-degree murder and sentenced to life in prison with no possibility of parole for 10 years. But the Alberta Court of Appeal ruled earlier this year that the murder conviction was unreasonable and substituted one of infanticide.

That charge carries a maximum five-year term.

"What this woman needs is support and understanding," defence lawyer Peter Royal said Thursday. "She's going to live with this for the rest of her life."

Court of Queen's Bench Justice Joanne Veit was to sentence Effert on Friday.

Effert told the judge she's sorry and takes responsibility for what she did. Medical experts have testified that the 19-year-old had a disturbed mind when she strangled her baby boy with her thong underwear, then tossed him over a fence into a neighbour's yard in Wetaskiwin in April 2005.

The desire to teach remains strong

JEREMY NOLAIS/METRO

▶ Ben Koch stands inside Mount Royal University on Thursday. He was among 75 students to take part in the inaugural day of classes for the new bachelor of education degree at the institution.

Despite grim job lookout, new program flooded with applicants

JEREMY NOLAIS
@METRONEWS.CA

Ben Koch wants to make a difference in the world, and for him that means pursuing a teaching career.

It turns out he's not alone.

The 24-year-old Calgarian was one of 75 applicants accepted into the inaugural class for the bachelor of education degree offered at Mount Royal University.

Program chair Irene Naested said within two weeks of the degree being announced, the university was flooded with nearly 700 applications and forced to cease further inquiries for the year.

This came as sweeping staff cuts were being made by school divisions across Alberta to overcome budget shortfalls. The Calgary Board of Education, specifically, slashed roughly about 170 frontline teaching positions in June.

"I believe there are still lots of jobs out there," Naested offered when asked about an influx of graduates.

"Our teachers can get jobs anywhere. They are better educated than those in most countries, and are highly sought after."

Jonathan Teghtmeyer with the Alberta Teachers' Association acknowledged there are few teaching positions in the province currently, but said an education degree can be used in a variety of fields.

"Whether it's corporate training, education in non-profit groups, tutoring ... it really is an all-around degree," he said.

Koch, meanwhile, is optimistic that connections within the education field and an ongoing shortage of male elementary teachers will play in his favour after graduation.

"There will always be kids that need teachers," he said during his first day of class Thursday. "It's what I want to do for sure."

Teaching numbers paint dire picture

There are fewer teaching positions in Alberta now than 2007 despite a continual rise in students, says the Alberta Teachers' Association.

It estimates about 400 jobs were lost in the province between 2009 and 2010 and forecasts up to 1,200 few educators for 2011 when final counts are done in November.

Patients unsure about wait times

Alberta Health Services launched online ER tracker in July ◐ Metro gave it a test

JEREMY NOLAIS
@METRONEWS.CA

Emergency-room wait times are calculated from the point a patient is assessed by a nurse to their first physician evaluation, a provincial health spokesperson says.

Alberta Health Services launched an online website tracker in late July that provides Calgarians in need of care with a rough estimate of the waits at major medical centres in the city.

Dr. Grant Innes said the informaton is meant merely as a guideline for initial entry into a hospital, but patients often mistake it as the entire duration needed to receive treatment.

The longest wait time Metro recorded during routine checks on the online tracker at least once a day for 29 days last month was five hours and 28 minutes, at the Foothills Hospital.

"You hear about these 18-to-20 (hour) wait-time stories when really the person is referring to the entire visit," he said.

Margaret Ward-Jack of the College and Association of Registered Nurses of Alberta says a patient in dire condition would receive care immediately, but someone suffering from a less serious ailment could spend hours waiting for assessment even after moving past the waiting room.

"The important thing for people to keep in mind with emergency rooms is you are not taken in the order you come in," she said.

Innes said further evaluation of the emergency-room wait-time online system is being planned to improve its accuracy and study potential effects on patient trends.

Lucy fight heads to top court

Animal welfare groups say they are going to the Supreme Court in their fight to have Lucy the elephant moved from the Edmonton zoo.

Zoocheck, along with People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals, will ask the high court to hear a challenge of an Alberta Appeal Court decision last month.

The lower court threw out their attempt to use the legal system to have Lucy moved from the city-owned zoo to a sanctuary in the United States. But one of the Appeal Court's three judges dissented and said the case should go to trial.

The animal groups say the 36-year-old Asian elephant is lonely, has many health problems and suffers in Edmonton's harsh winters.

The city says Lucy is properly cared for and an expert suggests she would probably die from a respiratory ailment if she were moved.

Shop local and donate local.

The Calgary Inter-Faith Food Bank has now partnered with Calgary's farmers' markets to help provide fresh food donations to those in need.

"We want to encourage Calgarians to make those fresh food donations," said Kathryn Sim, a spokesperson for the food bank. "We like that we are able to support the local farmers."

Some vendors within the Kingsland Farmers' Market embraced the new program Thursday by offering deals on fresh food items and then donating them on behalf of the customers.

"We are keeping it in the community and giving the community the best produce available," said Randy Burton, manager of the Big Tomato Produce Market.

Those vendors who do not offer fresh food have offered to collect cash — to be used to buy fresh.

The campaign kicked off Thursday at Kingsland Farmers' Market and will run there until Sunday.

The words that arose from the Twin Towers' fall

The attacks of Sept. 11, 2001 had a profound impact on nearly every facet of society, including the English language.

University of Toronto associate professor of linguistics Rena Helms-Park outlines the ways in which 9-11 shaped the way we speak.

Ground Zero: The term was originally used to describe the site of the Hiroshima bombing of 1945. Now the phrase has just one definition — the site of the former twin towers.

Guantanamo Bay: Before the U.S.-led crackdown on terrorist activity, Guantanamo Bay was nothing more than a locale near Cuba, Helms-Park said. Once the American prison began housing suspected terrorists, however, the meaning changed. Now it's become a symbol of one wrong being used to right another wrong," she said.

9-11: They use to be three numbers North Americans could dial in case of an emergency. They then became shorthand for the event itself and all that resulted from it.

No-fly list: Prior to 9-11, there was little need for a list of people who were not permitted to travel by air. Helms-Park said the term is likely here to stay.

Axis of Evil: The term, coined by former U.S. President George W. Bush to describe Iran, Iraq and North Korea, was invented to more clearly define the "war on terror."

PAUL SULLIVAN
METRO

Today, 10 years after, we still live in a 9-11 world.

But it's also a world with a few surprises up its sleeve.

The mastermind of 9-11, Osama bin Laden, is dead. You could argue that the War on Terror is over.

And Muslim nations, one after the other, have turned their backs on Osama's bogus jihad, opting instead for freedom and rebirth: The Arab Spring.

We, er, won.

But the cost has been almost too much to bear. America, not long ago the self-declared greatest nation in the world, is a spent force.

The War on Terror has drained the treasury, and no one's cheering for the man who tracked down bin Laden and ended the ruinous detour into Iraq. Barack Obama is down so low that everything looks like up to him.

It will take a long time for the shadows of 9-11 to dissipate.

Since that day, Canada has spent an extra $92 billion on security, too much of it frisking little old ladies and small children in airports. But do we feel any safer? Despite all the tedious precautions, one terrorist almost managed to blow up a plane, failing only because he was too clumsy to set his shoe on fire. With guys like that on the loose, it would be foolish to let down our guard. Is that a nail file in your purse, lady?

One of the darkest shadows of 9-11 is the spin. Otherwise enlightened people think it was our own fault, that Osama bin Laden was the instrument of our chastisement. Because we depend on Mideast oil. Because we support Israel. Because of our attitude.

Then there are those who seriously believe that 9-11 was an inside job, and proclaim it on lamp posts and the walls of buildings. That the Pentagon attacked the Pentagon to manipulate public opinion into approving another war.

Weapons of mass delusion.

Still, 10 years after, Osama bin Laden is gone, there are fledgling "democracies" in Iraq and Afghanistan, and just try to smuggle a bomb onto an airplane in your undershorts.

Somehow, we endure. We've learned that resilience and determination aren't pretty, but they work. And on our good days, we can look forward to a time when the light fills all the dark corners, where freedom and prosperity are the antidotes to danger and despair.

That's our mission. And it is not accomplished. Not even close.

METRO CANADA IN HALIFAX

"I will be catching up via email with everyone from up north as usual, trying to make sense of the fact that 10 years have already gone by since the time I was stuck there, unwittingly making new friends while trying to figure out if I lost any back home."

NEW YORKER JOHN BALISTRERI, WHO WAS STRANDED FOR FOUR DAYS

There's one flight New Yorker John Balistreri will never forget.

He was on his way home on Singapore Airlines on Sept. 11, 2001, when all commercial air traffic was temporarily suspended.

Eight thousand lost, confused and in-shock airline passengers descended into Halifax and were met with loving, open arms.

"The emotions ranged from genuine shock at what was going on in NYC to genuine appreciation and warmth for the people I met in Lower Sackville while I was 'stuck' in Canada," said Balistreri in an email interview.

He and about 280 other passengers on his flight were taken to Millwood High School in Lower Sackville. Other stranded passengers were sent to three other Halifax-area high schools or billeted in private homes.

"We had so many people from the area that volunteered that there were times we had to take names and say 'We'll call you,'" said former Millwood principal Phil Legere.

For the locals, it was something they could do to show support and help out during the crisis.

"When it was put in front of you, here's something you can do, I think everybody wanted to be part of it," Legere said.

Students, who had the week off, came in to take small children staying at the temporary shelter out to the park. Volunteers picked up passengers at the school to take them shopping for clothes.

"It wasn't just the generosity of the town, with their hospitality and volunteering. It was their genuine care and friendship for complete strangers that took me by surprise," said Balistreri.

"As a typical jaded New Yorker, to be able to have spent these torturous days right after the attack with such amazing, caring people did wonders for the way I was able to process what was going on while being so far from home."

Events marking the 10th anniversary of Sept. 11

CALGARY: The Military Museum of Calgary will unveil a World Trade Center artifact on Sept. 11 at 10:30 a.m. Admission is free.

OTTAWA: There will be a free, open-air 9-11 concert on the outdoor terrace of the National Arts Centre Sunday at 8:46 a.m.

NEW YORK: President Barack Obama and former President George W. Bush are expected at an observance at the World Trade Center. At night, the art installation Tribute in Light will project beams of light into the sky in memory of those killed.

WASHINGTON: A tribute concert at the Kennedy Center will feature Wynton Marsalis, Emmylou Harris and Denyce Graves. The event will be streamed live on Facebook. METRO

Russian president vows to make changes in the wake of hockey-team tragedy 43 died in plane crash

President Dmitry Medvedev called for immediate changes in Russia's troubled aviation industry on Thursday — including sharply reducing the number of airlines — as the country mourned a crash that killed 43 people and devastated a KHL hockey team.

The crash Wednesday killed 36 players, coaches and staff of the Lokomotiv Yaroslavl team, including European national team and former NHL players, drawing new attention to the poor air-safety records of Russia and other former Soviet republics.

Experts blame Russia's problems in the air on an aging fleet, weak government controls, poor pilot training and a cost-cutting mentality.

Investigators could not immediately pinpoint what caused the Yak-42 jet to crash into the banks of the Volga River shortly after takeoff from Yaroslavl, 240 kilometres northeast of Moscow.

Mourners pay tribute to Czech players

Hundreds of mourners gathered in the heart of Prague on Thursday to pay tribute to the three Czech hockey players killed in the plane crash that devastated a top Russian club.

People lit candles around a simple impromptu monument in the Old Town Square formed by two hockey sticks, some wearing the Czech national team jersey and chanting the names of the three players: Karel Rachunek, Jan Marek and Josef Vasicek.

A total of 36 players, coaches and staff of Russia's Lokomotiv Yaroslavl team were killed when their Yak-42 jet crashed on Wednesday outside Yaroslavl en route to their first game of the season in the Kontinental Hockey League.

The three players helped the Czech national team win the gold medal at the world hockey championships in 2005 and 2010. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

METRO CANADA IN LONDON, ONT.

Bonnie Cayen has hardly slept a wink this week.

"I've just been a mess," Cayen said. "She's my shadow. She followed me everywhere … slept with me."

Cayen, 54, is talking about her three-year-old cat Maggie. Or, as she was affectionately nicknamed, "Boo Boo Kitty."

Maggie died Saturday evening after being hit by a pickup while sitting on a patch of grass at Trafalgar Street and Carson Lane in London, Ont.

"He literally stopped his truck, aimed it at her … and gunned it," Cayen told Metro. "How can you do that to an innocent little cat?"

"If I can find out for sure who did this, I definitely will press charges.... She should still be here." BONNIE CAYEN, MAGGIE'S OWNER

Cayen missed the attack, but neighbours saw the large, new-model navy-blue pickup that took Maggie's life. Witnesses gave chase, but they lost the truck a few blocks away when it entered traffic on a busy road..

Maggie was sort of a mascot for Cayen's neighbourhood. She sat on the corner where she died practically every night.

Rebels driven to catch Gadhafi

Libya's new rulers say they have dedicated a special unit of fighters to track Moammar Gadhafi, listening in on his aides' phone calls, poring over satellite images and interviewing witnesses.

Although leads come mostly from on-the-ground tips, help is also coming from France and other Western countries, according to a French intelligence official. Satellite-based transmission intercepts of suspicious phone calls try to pinpoint where Gadhafi might be. Small CIA teams are also assisting in the manhunt, according to former U.S. officials.

Gadhafi, who hasn't been seen in public for months, went underground after anti-regime fighters swept into Tripoli on Aug. 21. Capturing the ousted ruler would allow the former rebels to seal their grip on the country and shut the door on the possibility of Gadhafi's inspiring an insurgency against the new leaders.

After more than four decades under his authoritarian rule, Libyans are haunted by the question of Gadhafi's whereabouts, and the country has been awash with rumours that have put him everywhere from deep in a bunker under Tripoli to safe in exile in neighbouring Niger or Algeria.

A former rebel fighter, speaking on condition of anonymity because of the sensitivity of the matter, said revolutionary forces stormed a villa on Tripoli's outskirts last week acting on a tip. The fighter said they believe Gadhafi was at the villa and escaped less than an hour before the raid.

Interpol asked to join Gadhafi hunt

Red notice seen as symbolic Rebels want to put ousted leader on trial for abuses during his rule

The International Criminal Court is seeking Interpol's help in arresting ousted Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi, the court's chief prosecutor said yesterday.

Luis Moreno-Ocampo is asking the international police organization to issue a "red notice" for Gadhafi and says arresting him is a "matter of time."

Gadhafi has not been seen in public for months. In an audio message broadcast yesterday by a pro-Gadhafi satellite TV channel based in Syria, he vowed never to leave Libya and called on supporters to keep fighting.

Moreno-Ocampo's office said he also sought Interpol help in the arrest of Gadhafi's son and one-time heir apparent Seif al-Islam, and the regime's intelligence chief Abdullah Al-Sanoussi.

All three men are accused of crimes against humanity over a campaign of murder and torture since February in an attempt to crush dissent. The court issued arrest warrants for them in June, but it has no police force of its own. It relies on national law enforcement agencies to execute arrests.

Interpol says that red notices allow warrants to be circulated worldwide with a request that the wanted suspect be arrested.

However, issuing red notices for the three Libyans would be largely symbolic because the UN Security Council already urged UN member states to co-operate with the international court when the council called on Moreno-Ocampo to investigate atrocities in Libya.

It also remains to be seen if Libyan fighters hunting Gadhafi and the new National Transitional Council leadership will hand over the suspects if they are captured.

▶ Several countries now allow gay men to donate blood.

Changing the rules?

Britain allows blood donation by gay men Canada may follow suit Tainted-blood scandal makes authorities wary of policy change

British authorities opened the door yesterday by allowing some gay men to donate blood, a move Canada's two blood-collection agencies hope to follow.

But concerns about the safety of the blood supply that stem from the tainted-blood scandal of the 1990s may lead Canada to adopt a more restrictive policy than the one Britain announced, some figures involved in the debate suggest.

"We're not totally closed to change at this point, but we need to go carefully," David Page, national executive director of the Canadian Hemophilia Society, said from Montreal.

Yesterday Britain joined South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, Japan and several other countries in doing away with the now controversial lifetime ban on blood donations from gay men.

Starting in November, gay men in Britain who haven't had sex with other gay men for at least 12 months will be eligible to give blood. In South Africa the deferral period is six months; in New Zealand it is five years.

Toronto lawyer Adrian Lomaga, who has been fighting for this type of policy change in Canada, welcomed the news.

"Given the research I've seen to date, I think a 12-month deferral period is reasonable. I'm comfortable with that as being a deferral period in Canada," said Lomaga, who filed a lawsuit against Quebec's blood agency, Hema-Quebec, when he was a student at McGill University.

"I don't think it would increase in any significant way the risk to the blood recipients in Canada."

However, spokespeople for both Hema-Quebec and Canadian Blood Services — which operates the blood donation system in the rest of Canada — acknowledged the agencies feel that it's time for a change.

"Our hope is that we move away from a permanent ban to a timed deferral," said Dana Devine, vice-president for medical, scientific and research services for Canadian Blood Services. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Galliano avoids jail time for slurs

MICHEL EULER/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FILE

▶ John Galliano

John Galliano's drunken anti-Semitic ravings cost him his job at Paris luxury house Christian Dior and gave him a criminal record but won't land him in jail, a Paris court ruled yesterday.

The court found Galliano guilty on two counts of "public insults based on origin, religious affiliation, race or ethnicity" — charges that carry a maximum sentence of six months in prison and fines of up to $20,000.

But the three-magistrate panel showed leniency, sentencing the legendary designer to an $8,400 suspended fine, which means it goes on Galliano's criminal record but he does not have to pay it. The court did not give Galliano prison time.

Presiding judge Anne-Marie Sauteraud said the magistrates' clemency was in part due to the fact that the designer had apologized to the court and the plaintiffs — who contended the designer showered them with a litany of racist and anti-Semitic insults in two separate run-ins at a Paris watering hole.

Texting teen kills Winnipeg man

METRO CANADA IN WINNIPEG

A 53-year-old man is dead after a Winnipeg teen, who was texting and driving, smashed into the man's vehicle head-on.

Winnipeg police said the 19-year-old was driving a Toyota pick-up truck eastbound on Dugald Road near Goodyear Avenue in north Winnipeg. Because he was texting, he failed to notice traffic in front of him had stopped.

The teen then veered into the westbound lanes to avoid rear-ending the car in front of him, but instead smashed into a Dodge Neon head-on.

The driver of the neon was taken to the hospital in critical condition, but later succumbed to his injuries. The 19-year-old driver of the truck was taken to hospital in stable condition.

He was originally charged with criminal negligence causing bodily harm and possession of a prohibited weapon, but a spokesperson for the Winnipeg Police Service said the charges will likely be updated to criminal negligence causing death.

The investigation continue.

Nearly 100,000 people from New York to Maryland were ordered to flee the rising Susquehanna River on Thursday as the remnants of Tropical Storm Lee dumped more rain across the Northeast, closing major highways and soaking areas still recovering from Hurricane Irene.

Power outage strikes

A major power outage knocked out electricity to more than two million people in California, Arizona and Mexico yesterday, bringing San Diego and Tijuana to a standstill and leaving people sweltering in the late-summer heat in the surrounding desert.

Two nuclear reactors were offline after losing electricity, but officials said there was no danger to the public or workers.

San Diego bore the brunt of the blackout that started shortly before 4 p.m. PDT.; most of the nation's eighth-largest city was darkened. All outgoing flights from San Diego's Lindbergh Field were grounded and police stations were using generators to accept emergency calls across the area.

The outage was likely caused by an employee carrying out a procedure at a power substation in southwest Arizona and should have been limited to the Yuma area, power officials in Arizona said in a press release.

Finance minister says tariffs are to blame

Retail Council of Canada says some sports goods, such as runners and skates can carry 18 per cent tariff

Finance Minister Jim Flaherty concedes that government policies regarding tariffs on imports may be one of the reasons consumer goods cost less in the U.S. than in Canada.

A day after calling for the Senate finance committee to investigate the price gap, which one survey puts at 20 per cent on average, the minister said Thursday that high tariffs may be a problem.

But he stopped short of saying they would be removed or reduced. He said that's what the Senate probe will help determine.

Tariffs on most goods between Canada, the U.S. and Mexico were phased out under bilateral and continental trade deals in the late 1980s and early 1990s.

However, there are still duties paid on some goods not covered by the trade agreements as well as a range of clothing, consumer electronics and other products that come to Canada from Asia, Europe, South America and other areas.

Rogers not vying to air Olympics

Rogers Communications won't be bidding for the Canadian broadcast rights to the 2014 Winter and 2016 Summer Olympic Games alongside CTV, its partner in previous coverage of two of the most-watched sporting series.

Keith Pelley, president of Rogers' media division, said Thursday that the company has decided to focus its budget and airtime instead on the Blue Jays season and Rogers Cup tennis tournament, opting out of the Winter Games in Russia and Summer Games in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

Broadcasters "want to maximize the exposure ... and want to put the (Summer) Games in prime time, and that falls dead into the middle of the Blue Jay season and the middle of Rogers Cup tennis," Pelley said.

She also noted that consumers already have "a plethora" of options when it comes to watching the Olympics. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Google bites into Zagat

Google has bought the restaurant-review service Zagat as it tries to help people connect with local businesses.

The founders, Nina and Tim Zagat, said they will remain a part of the 32-year-old company and will use Google's resources and expertise to expand.

Zagat currently offers reviews and ratings on restaurants in more than 100 cities around the world, based largely on surveys of diners.

Google plans to integrate Zagat with its search and mapping products.

In a blog post Thursday announcing the purchase, Google said Zagat "will be a cornerstone of our local offering."

Google, along with numerous other companies are trying to improve their local content offerings as a way to sell more advertisements to local merchants.

Terms of the purchase agreement were not disclosed.

Saab drives closer to collapse

Troubled automaker Saab, known for its quirky, rounded cars, moved closer to financial collapse Thursday after a Swedish court rejected its request for bankruptcy protection.

The ruling means the Swedish brand, which has struggled financially since General Motors Co. sold it to Netherlands-based Spyker Cars in 2010, is now only days away from facing bankruptcy action from trade unions. Spyker has since changed names to Swedish Automobile.

The company has struggled to pay suppliers and staff, and production at its manufacturing plant in Trollhattan, Sweden, has been suspended for most of the year.

Swedish Automobile said it would appeal the court's decision before the deadline on Sept. 29.

It unclear whether the court will accept the request. THE THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Splurges add to debt

The average consumer debt increased by just $6 from the first quarter But small expenses such as ordering lattes and eating out at restaurants still adds to debt

Canadians may be reducing their household debt in the face of economic uncertainty but they appear unwilling to cut back on morning lattes or meals at restaurants, a move that could net big savings.

Nearly one-third of Canadians surveyed planned to spend more of their disposable income this summer on dinners out, up from 24 per cent last year.

Spending on lunches out and morning hot beverages was also expected to increase, according to a BMO survey conducted in early May, before the U.S. debt crisis.

But Chris De Vries, personal banking area manager for the Bank of Montreal, said the trend from past surveys suggests economic clouds were likely insufficient to alter spending intentions for these small ticket items.

Satisfying a daily latte fix alone can cost more than $1,000 a year, while spending $10 for lunch adds up to around $2,600 per year. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Empty nests to shrink

The Canadian housing market will shift over the next two decades as aging baby boomers downsize from houses to apartments and condos, the Conference Board of Canada says.

"Baby boomers have had a huge impact on the housing market for years and years, and it's just because they're such a big cohort in the demographic," said Pedro Antunes, the think-tank's director of forecasting and analysis. THE CANADIAN PRESS per cent of new housing demand will come from those 65 and older by 2030, the board predicted. Sixty per cent of new households will be formed by those 75 and up.

TIFF, TUFF AND EVERYTHING IN BETWEEN

THE METRO LIST

MIKE BENHAIM
METRO

During these hard times, I like to immerse myself in fiction and the mockery of other people's dysfunction. Hence some points of distraction for the weeks ahead:

1 TV a la carte: The quintessential viewer's lament is that we have all this variety, yet there never seems to be anything on.

Well, rumour has it that you will soon be able to pick and choose your stations without subscribing to the full cable package. Just imagine all those single men with 50 channels of sports and porn.

2 Ice, ice, baby: It's almost hockey season again in Canada, and no one is more excited than the city of Winnipeg. The new and improved Jets unveiled their new uniforms this week. Now let's see if they can actually play.

3 Dancing with the boys: Sonny and Cher's child, Chastity, underwent a female-to-male sex-change operation a year ago. Now, Chaz's inclusion on Dancing With the Stars has sparked controversy among religious groups who claim he's an "abomination."

Shame on them for judging a man just for being born with a vagina. We will accept Chaz like anyone else and simply focus on the fact that he is overweight and unattractive.

4 Two and a Half Men: The new season will begin with the funeral of Charlie Sheen's character while the real Charlie lives on. The cruel irony is too much for me to bear.

5 X Factor: The most anticipated new show is unoriginal, but apparently American audiences crave more disdainful commentary from curmudgeon-extraordinaire Simon Cowell and more inane bickering with Paula Abdul. Contestants will be ridiculed at every turn. Just the kind of thing our highly evolved TV audiences enjoy.

6 Fall "Mad"ness: Capitalizing on the success of Mad Men, two new series' emerge this season. Pan Am and The Playboy Club are both set in the '60s, feature hot ladies in pantyhose and men in suits with shiny hair. So much nostalgia for an era when sexually repressed people drank and smoked unabashedly around toddlers, then packed them into the car for a swirvy, fun-filled ride to their asbestos-insulated, lead-filled homes. Ah, those were the days.

7 TIFF: It's TIFF time again, and Toronto will host the world's hottest stars. While the festival is always a great draw, the true beauty of the experience is the gamble, so don't get caught up in Hollywood hype.

Take a chance on the unknowns, because it's cooler and more exclusive to say, "I just watched a three-hour movie in Swahili, and have no idea what I saw."

8 TUFF enuff: The fifth annual Toronto Urban Film Festival is a delightful bonus for commuters. This week, subway screens throughout the city are displaying a variety of submissions. The silent, one-minute films can be a welcome distraction from the fact that you may be among strangers who have chosen not to bathe. You have to be in T.O. to enjoy that experience, but if you can't make it, visit torontourbanfilmfestival.com

RE: Editorial cartoon published Sept. 8

In light of the deaths this summer of three hockey players and the crash of the plane in Russia on Thursday, I found it sickening that your newspaper would publish this cartoon. It is disgusting and insensitive and should never have seen the light of day. I can only hope that it was meant to promote concussion awareness, but, come on, take another look. Too bad, I really enjoyed this paper up till now.

JOHN COLLINGS, LONDON

I am a regular reader, and I'm not usually one to complain about anything, but I just had to write in and say that I found the comic on September 8th to be in extremely bad taste.

Your cover story is about 43 people being killed in a plane crash, many of them professional hockey players with families, and then think it is appropriate to run a comic poking fun at dead hockey players? This would be bad form at any time, but in light of what JUST happened I find it absolutely disgusting.

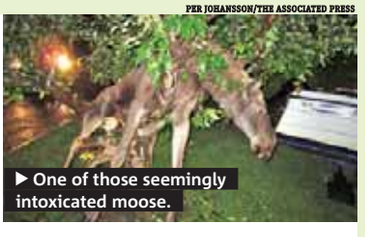
Somebody had too many fermented apples, again

PER JOHANSSON/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS



▶ One of those seemingly intoxicated moose.

A seemingly intoxicated moose has been discovered entangled in an apple tree by a stunned Swede.

Per Johansson says he heard a roar from his vacationing neighbour's garden in southwestern Sweden late Tuesday and went to have a look. There, he found a female moose kicking about in the tree. The animal was likely drunk from eating fermented apples.

With the help of police and rescue services, the 45-year-old Johansson later managed to set the moose free in part by sawing off tree branches.

But the animal appeared confused and wandered into Johansson's garden, where she was still resting Thursday.

Johansson said the moose appeared to be sick, drunk or "half-stupid." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Synopsis

- The story begins with patient zero, Beth Emhoff (Gwyneth Paltrow), an executive who carries a disease from Hong Kong to Minneapolis. Twenty-four hours later she is dead and a modern day plague has begun. Add in a meddlesome blogger (Jude Law), medical emergency personnel (Marion Cotillard, Laurence Fishburne and Kate Winslet) and widespread panic and you have SARS, Soderbergh style.

RICHARD CROUSE & MARK BRESLIN

The cold and clinical

Contagion — a story about a modern-day plague — arrives just in time for flu season ◗ Crouse and Breslin concur; it's an entertaining medical procedural

Richard: Mark, Contagion is The Towering Inferno with germs, an all-star disaster movie in the mode of Irwin Allen's 1970s spectacles. It's a generally more serious affair than the Allen cheesefest but they both beat with the same pulpy heart. Each movie takes itself a bit too seriously — although the scene that gives new meaning to the phrase, "picking Gwyneth Paltrow's brain," seems geared for gruesome laughs — and has too many characters and tries, with varying levels of success, to pluck at your heartstrings.

MB: Well, Paltrow has always had a cerebral approach to acting, and this movie proves it. And the "cerebral" approach extends to the rest of the movie. Unlike you, Richard, I found it a bit aloof and clinical, which fit the topic. After all the science fiction movies about bad viruses, this one is closer to actual science. And the movie arrives just in time for flu season. I had to suppress a cough at the theatre, lest I get roughed up.

RC: I get what you mean by the aloof and clinical remark to a point. The Lawrence Fishburne story is an effective medical procedural. It's a bit clinical at times, like an episode of CSI set entirely inside the lab, but large parts of the story seemed unnecessary. A plot line featuring Marion Cotillard in China, for instance, could easily have been removed with no noticeable (except for the absence of the lovely Ms. Cotillard) effect and the blogger story feels forced.

MB: Usually movies of this type focus on one family and we see the crisis (zombies, war, Contagion) through their eyes. Soderbergh is working differently here, as if conducting a survey of how this pandemic might affect different types of people in various social groups. Only the Matt Damon thread seemed to have any real emotion; but even his story is underplayed. As far as the Jude Law blogger, I wouldn't want to have missed his homemade Hazmat suit, which made him look like the cyborg he played in A.I. But it was fun to watch so many major actors in the small roles, especially Elliott Gould; and Demitri Martin, who barely had one line!

RC: I did enjoy the movie; I just thought it was a bit sloppy for a Soderbergh film. Having said that, however, it should do for touching your face what Jaws did for ocean side vacations.

MB: Ha! And not many people will crave Chinese food after the film. But I liked the movie, too, even if it sometimes felt like a grad thesis in epidemiology.

In an age where irony, self referencing and cruelty dominate the horror film, Creature is a refreshing throwback. A gothic, old-fashioned yet gory bit of trashy monster mayhem, the pic stars genre standby Sid Haig as a bayou-dwelling creep with a weird connection to a swamp demon called Lockjaw, a beastie that takes great pleasure in devouring the young, dumb kids who cross his toothy path. Part Creature From the Black Lagoon and part Friday the 13th, the fact this fun little flick is getting a wide theatrical release at all is cause for celebration.

Being billed as this year's The Fighter, the mixed martial-arts drama Warrior pits two estranged brothers against each other as they each surge through the ranks of a multi-million dollar fighting championship. Though that sounds like an attempt at selling cinematic brutality to jacked-up MMA fans, director Gavin O'Connor (Miracle) spins an emotionally-intense story that delves into family dysfunction and forgiveness despite its predictable arc and bloated running time.

The crying game

Movie fans, pull out your hankies. Here are five films that are guaranteed to open the floodgates — every time

E.T. (1982)

You've seen it a million times and you know what's going to happen. E.T. is going to live, and the little guy is going to phone home, and his spaceship is going to swoop down to pick him up. Doesn't matter. Those blue eyes of his, and the friendship between E.T. and Elliott never fail to draw out the tears.

Nights of Cabiria (1957)

That famous last shot gets you every time. Fellini's wife, Giulietta Masina, is irresistible as Cabiria, the proverbial hooker with a heart of gold. She finally thinks she's found "the one," only to find he's not. Heartbroken, she smiles through tears as if to let us know she'll be all right.

Lassie Come Home (1943)

Lassie Come Home is heartbreaking no matter who you are. Featuring a young Roddy McDowell and Elizabeth Taylor, it tells the story of a destitute family forced to sell its beloved dog. But Lassie breaks free from her new owners and treks hundreds of miles through various dangers to return home.

My Dog Skip (2000)

Any film with a dog is guaranteed to tug heart strings. My Dog Skip also has that irresistible boy-and-his dog dynamic, which exponentially ups the cute factor. A young Frankie Muniz stars as a shy kid named Willie whose only real friend, a scruffy and lovable Jack Russell terrier, helps him open up to the world.

Up (2009)

The whole film is lovely, of course. But it's that one poignant montage that makes the tears come in torrents. It reveals the decades-long relationship between curmudgeonly, 78-year-old Carl Fredricksen and the love of his life, his late wife, Ellie, who brought out the fun he never knew he had inside of him. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The talented and talentless

Both groups welcome to audition for Canada's Got Talent • Tryouts at Mayfield Inn and Suites in Edmonton

IAN GORMELY
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Never underestimate a person's lack of self-awareness.

Nowhere is this mantra more apparent than on skill-based reality television, where a complete and utter lack of talent never fails to dissuade the talentless from auditioning.

Of course, this kind of public embarrassment is what fuels ratings for shows like American Idol and the X Factor.

And soon enough you'll be able to add a new show to that list: Canada's Got Talent hits the airwaves next spring, with auditions rolling out across the country this fall.

"It blows your mind when you do a show like this, how many people think that they've got a talent and what level of excellence that may or may not be," says John Brunton, the show's executive producer and a veteran of similar reality fare.

"I saw singers on (Canadian) Idol who thought they should be on the radio. It was like hearing nails on a chalkboard."

Anyone thinking of auditioning might want to consider some of Brunton's advice to avoid potential public embarrassment.

Above all else, he says, the producers are looking for entertainment. They want someone who is funny or unique.

And of course, they're looking for people who are outstanding in their field.

While Brunton maintains that you can't tell a book by it's cover, citing U.K. singing phenomenon Susan Boyle as proof, there are certain signs that giveaway someone that's about to crash and burn.

"When the guy comes out on the stage and he can't make eye contact or the person is so nervous that you can see the sweat dripping off their nose," he says, "there are all sorts of tells."

That said, Brunton wants people to know that all are welcome to participate, no matter what their talent (or lack thereof) might be.

"We're not there to hammer people, we're there to celebrate diversity."

Auditions for Canada's Got Talent run from Sept. 14-15 at Mayfield Inn and Suites in Edmonton.

ERIC LIEBOWITZ

Auditions

- Thinking of auditioning? Don't expect an Idol-like set-up with a panel of judges determining your future in the blink of an eye.
- In order to better handle the expected 20,000 entrants, every act that auditions will be taped, with judgement reserved for behind the scenes.
- A spartan team of six to 10 producers and judges will then sift through the multitude of magicians, singers and dog acts between now and Christmas, whittling thousands down to hundreds.
- Says Brunton of the numbers: "It's staggering."

From Degrassi to dinosaur drama

Rising star Landon Liboiron set to star in Terra Nova • Show imagines what it would be like to travel back to a time when dinosaurs ruled

IAN JOHNSTON
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

For Landon Liboiron, getting into character on the big budget dinosaur drama Terra Nova was as simple as walking onto its impressive Australian set.

"I remember the first time the whole cast walked through the gates of Terra Nova. It was just massive," says Liboiron, who plays Josh Shannon, the eldest son of a family who finds a new life 85 million years in the past.

"We were just in stunned silent. The director said he wished he had the cameras rolling. No acting required."

It's a time travel tale about a dying future world where the air is toxic and children are severely restricted. The Shannon family seeks a way out with a risky plan to travel through time — back to an unspoiled earth millions of years in the past.

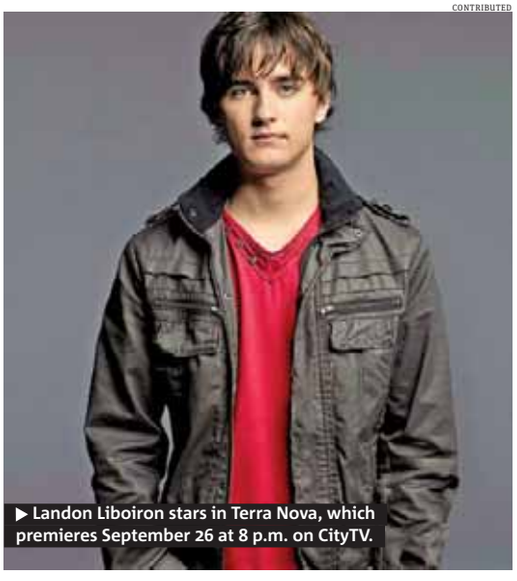
"When you're six or seven, dinosaurs are these crazy, cool things. But as you get older, they kind of lose their magic. So working on this show has really brought back that childhood magic for me."
LANDON LIBOIRON

"My character is the oldest brother and the only one really not excited about going back in time," says the Vancouver-based Liboiron, who is probably best known to younger Canadian viewers as Declan on Degrassi.

"He has a life and a girlfriend and is at an age when he's starting to turn into his own man. So he's against going to Terra Nova."

But though the world of Terra Nova is unspoiled, it's not free of danger — the biggest being the local dinosaurs.

CONTRIBUTED



▶ Landon Liboiron stars in Terra Nova, which premieres September 26 at 8 p.m. on CityTV.

Liboiron says he's having a ball getting back in touch with his childhood love for all things dino-related.

But it's not like he gets to pet the big lizards. They're all CGI, conjured up long after the cast has left the set.

"It's really a great challenge as an actor to create this world entirely behind your eyes."

TV picks

Seth Rogan takes over

GET READY TO GIGGLE. Fans of Canadian comic actor Seth Rogen will have a difficult choice to make Friday. On the one hand, MuchMoreMusic is airing his 2007 breakout comedy Knocked Up, in which a hasty one-night stand extends another nine months — at least.

But then, Action is answering with his 2008 comedy Pineapple Express, in which a stoner who witnessed a murder goes on the lam with his dealer in tow.

Footballers have feelings

FREUDIAN HITS. The NFL season just started, but you don't need to be a gridiron junkie to dig Necessary Roughness, a breezy new drama that makes its Canadian premiere Friday.

The show centres on Rescue Me alumna Callie Thorne, who plays a divorced psychotherapist tasked with rehabbing a bad-boy pro football player.

The old school Karate kid

WAX ON, WAX OFF. Hollywood seems to be on an ongoing mission to remake every well-liked '80s hit, but Saturday a few of the originals are on offer.

YTV is airing 1984's The Karate Kid (released 14 years before future karate-chopper Jaden Smith was born) while radX will show the Cold War-era high-school thriller Red Dawn. Meanwhile, CHCH is airing 1983's Flashdance, which actually hasn't been remade — yet.

Something of a phenomenon

SCI-FI SHOWS. The sci-fi miniseries Torchwood: Miracle Day wraps its acclaimed 10-episode run Saturday, with the team travelling on a final desperate mission.

Fans of the show might feel equally desperate to see it end, but at least there's still more Doctor Who. In tonight's episode, Amy is trapped in a facility that houses alien plague quarantine victims. (Space)

Out on his own

Former teen idol changes up sound Will it work?

IAN GORMELY
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO TORONTO

It's tough out there for teen idols.

Two years ago, toppling the Jonas Brothers from the top of the teen pop heap seemed unfathomable. Now they seem like a distant memory when compared to the superstar status of Justin Bieber and Lady Gaga.

Now 22-year-old Joe Jonas is striking out on his own and hitting back these young upstarts with their own game. Abandoning the pop-rock sound that garnered his band Rolling Stone covers and legions of teenaged fans, Joe's debut, Fast Life, which drops next month, leans heavy on dance floor beats and R&B tropes.

"It's the kind of music that I've always loved ... I've always really been into dance music and electro music, hip hop music." JOE JONAS

"It's the kind of music that I've always loved," he told journalists during a recent conference call to promote the record and his upcoming club tour that brings him to Toronto Saturday night. "I've always really been into dance music and electro music, hip hop music. I've always been really intrigued to kind of go on my own path to create something different."

No one on the call was allowed to actually hear the album beforehand, so it's hard to say whether Joe's solo star will go the way of Justin Timberlake or JC Chasez.

In fact Joe wouldn't even reveal who helped in its creation, save Chris Brown who appears on the album's lead single, See No More.

Joe maintains that he and his brothers haven't split up. But even he admits that any reconvening would depend on the success of this new record.

"It could be six months. It could be two years. It all depends I guess on the success of this album and how long it will carry it out."

Whatever the results, its clear that Joe is ready for whatever comes his way. "You just got to have confidence going into it. And I'm feeling pretty excited and pumped to be able to hit the road."

THE BEST ROCK DOCS

SOUND CHECK

ALAN CROSS
SCENE
@METRONEWS.CA

▶ From the Sky Down is showing at this year's Toronto International Film Festival.

Is a documentary to start the 36th annual Toronto International Film Festival? And a rock doc? Makes sense, really, given that the festival and the band involved pretty much share the exact same birthdate. As the first-ever TIFF was kicking off in September 1976, the band that would become U2 were having their first rehearsals at the drummer's house.

And the Davis It Might Get Loud Guggenheim-directed From the Sky Down isn't the only rock 'n' roll documentary at TIFF this year. Pearl Jam 20, a film capturing that band's first two decades — a Cameron Crowe production, no less — will also get a showing before it has a brief one-night run in theatres on the 20th.

And let's not forget Paul Williams is Still Alive, a film about the diminutive songwriter and actor who starred in Phantom of the Paradise and, more impressively, wrote Rainbow Connection for Kermit the Frog.

This got me thinking about putting together a list of the best rock docs of all time.

Here's what I came up with.

The Last Waltz (1978):

Martin Scorsese's fascination with rock docs began here. The Band's final concert at the Winterland Theatre in San Francisco set the bar high for years afterward.

The Kids Are Alright (1979):

I was such a Who fan that when this came out, I sat through three straight showings in the theatre.

Rock & Roll: An Unruly History (1995):

A PBS mini-series based on the writings of academic Robert Palmer.

Dig! (2004):

A side-by-side comparison of the Dandy Warhols and the Brian Jonestown massacre, two bands that emerged out of Portland on equal footing but had decidedly different (and tragic) career paths.

New York Doll (2005):

How Arthur "Killer" Kane came to participate in a reunion of the New York Dolls.

Joe Strummer: The Future is Unwritten (2007):

And I know that the band wasn't real (at least when they shot the mockdoc in 1984), but every music fan needs to watch This Is Spinal Tap.

Jessica Simpson loves her twins

Jessica Simpson heard the reports that she's planning to get a breast reduction in advance of her upcoming wedding, and she's not too happy about them.

The voluptuous singer took to Twitter to clear things up.

"Not to worry. I love my boobies! They aren't going anywhere!" METRO

Hudson a 'brat': Dad

Father has nasty words for actress Kate Hudson in his new book

TODD WILLIAMSON/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Kate Hudson

Bill Hudson, Goldie Hawn's ex-husband and Kate Hudson's estranged father, has some stories to tell in his new book, 2 Versions: The Other Side of Fame and Family — and chances are Kate won't be too thrilled about them.

"She has done stuff which is just awful," Bill writes, according to Radar Online. "She is a spoiled brat in my eyes." His biggest gripe? That Kate hasn't been in touch with her grandmother, who is battling Alzheimer's.

"Kate doesn't have to talk to me and she doesn't have to give her a dime of her millions. All I want is for her to call and say, 'Hi grandma,' before it's too late," he writes. METRO

Gaga has no problem being alone

JASON MERRITT/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Lady Gaga dressed as "Jo Calderone."

She may be a successful touring pop star with at least two vibrant onstage personalities, but Lady Gaga admits she spends most of her time by herself — not that that's a problem.

"When you're alone as much as I am, you become accustomed to your solitude and embrace it," she tells Harpers Bazaar.

"I work about 16 to 20 hours a day. And when I'm alone, I write, I imagine, I create things, and I decide how I want to do my future performances. I don't take much time off." METRO

Would Paltrow cheat on hubby?

Gwyneth Paltrow isn't judging her friends that step out on their spouses — but she's not keeping quiet about it, either.

"Life is complicated and long, and I know people that I respect and admire and look up to who have had extra-marital affairs," Paltrow said. "We're flawed. We're human beings, and sometimes you make choices that other people are going to judge ... I think that the more I love my life, the more I learn not to judge." METRO

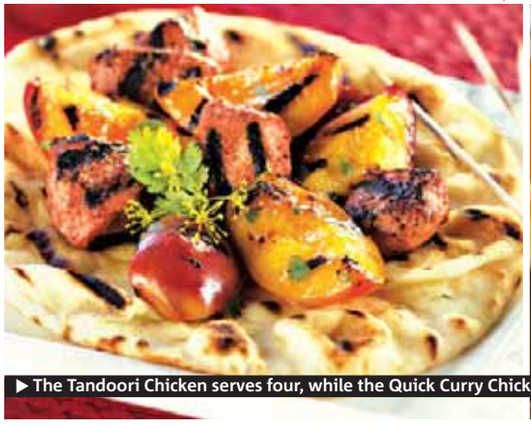
An Indian affair

Dishes from India are all about spice As the seasons change, bring back the heat with this Tandoori Grilled Chicken and Quick Curry Chicken

THE CANADIAN PRESS H/O



NEWS CANADA

These recipes offer a contemporary take on Indian cooking by employing unlikely ingredients.

Grilled Tandoori Chicken Preparation:

1. In bowl, whisk yogurt with tandoori paste and 15 ml (1 tbsp) lemon juice. Cut chicken into bite-size chunks; add to yogurt mix and stir. Refrigerate, stirring occasionally, for 30 mins or covered overnight.
2. Cut each peach into 4 wedges. In bowl, toss peaches, 5 ml (1 tsp) lemon juice, oil and 30 ml (2 tbsp) coriander.
3. Thread chicken onto 4 skewers; thread peaches onto 4 skewers. Sprinkle all with salt. Place chicken on greased grill over medium heat; grill, turning for 7 mins. Add peach skewers; grill until juices run clear when chicken is pierced and peaches are warm, 3 mins. During last min of cooking, grill naan.
4. To serve, top each naan with 1 peach skewer, 1 chicken skewer and dollop of raita. Sprinkle with remaining coriander. THE CANADIAN PRESS/ FOODLAND ONTARIO

Quick Curry Chicken Preparation:

1. In deep saucepan heat oil over medium–high heat. Add onion and stir–fry 3 mins; add mushrooms and stir–fry 4 mins. Stir in garlic, 3 tbsp (45 mL) curry paste and cinnamon; then add quartered chicken thighs and stir–fry 3 mins. Stir in tomatoes with juice; cover and reduce heat to medium–low and cook 10 mins. Taste and stir in more curry if desired. Add cauliflower and lentils; bring to boil, cover and cook about 5 mins. Stir in cilantro and serve topped with a dollop of yogurt. Accompany with naan bread or basmati rice. NEWS CANADA

Historical day remembered

PETER ROCKWELL

I'm always amazed at how wine works its way into so many of my life's most memorable moments. Sometimes, it's just part of the fun. Other times, it has a supporting role in the unfolding events.

Ten years ago this Sunday, I was at work. It was a Tuesday. I was having an average day, like so many of you. Mine just happened to involve tasting about 50 wines. A co-worker interrupted me to say a plane had crashed into the World Trade Center in New York. We turned on the TV in time to watch the second plane hit.

Of all the things I remember about that day, the fact that I was tasting Italian wine has never left me and I've uncorked a bottle from Italy to commemorate 9-11 every since.

This year, it will be the Rocca delle Macìe 2007 Famiglia Zingarelli Chianti Classico ($18.95 - $21.98): A classically designed Tuscan red with a rich, full-bodied expression of cherry fruit and oak that's a fine partner for reflection. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS CANADA. Stampeders look to rebound against Eskimos after ugly Labour Day loss in Calgary

JEFF MCINTOSH/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Edmonton's Marcus Henry struggles with Calgary's Brandon Smith for control of the ball on Monday.

Fortunately for John Hufnagel, the Calgary Stampeders don't have time to dwell on the past.

Calgary is still stinging from its lopsided 35-7 home loss to the Edmonton Eskimos on Labour Day. The good news for Hufnagel and the Stampeders is that the rematch goes Friday night at Commonwealth Stadium between the West Division co-leaders.

"I expect them to respond positively and understand what our downfall was," Hufnagel said when asked of his expectation for his team. "We've played Edmonton twice and come out on the short end both times and need to do everything better.

"We need to coach better, play better and hopefully have a different result."

The Eskimos (6-3) emphatically snapped a three-game losing streak Monday while handing Calgary (6-3) its first loss in five games in clinching the season series. Edmonton forced four turnovers and outscored its provincial rival 32-0 in the second and third quarters combined after falling behind 7-0 in the first.

A tenacious Edmonton defence made life miserable for Calgary starter Henry Burris, who finished just 13-of-23 passing for 132 yards with a touchdown and two interceptions. He was also sacked three times and lost two of three fumbles.

Often following a lopsided loss, a football coach will skip the formality of watching the video, but Hufnagel felt it was important his players sit through and watch the contest.

"You watch it, you correct it, you make the players watch it and do better," he said.

Edmonton was buoyed by the return of defensive lineman Greg Peach and receiver Adarius Bowman from injury Monday.

Peach had five tackles, forced a fumble and recovered another that led to two Eskimos touchdowns while Bowman registered five catches for a game-high 81 yards and a TD. Bowman also took a cross-field lateral pass from Jason Armstead on a punt return before scampering 31 yards.

STAMPEDERS ESKIMOS

▶ Time: 7 p.m., Friday
TV: TSN

A win Friday would not only give Edmonton a two-point lead over Calgary atop the West Division standings but also a sweep of the season series. At the very least the Eskimos have already clinched the season series, meaning they'd finish ahead of their provincial rivals if the two clubs ended the regular season tied.

"I try not to think too far ahead at times ... but if we can get this one it would put us back in first place," said Bowman. "Sweeping Calgary all three games we play them, that's big."

Despite the lopsided score, Edmonton quarterback Ricky Ray didn't have a particularly big day, finishing 14-of-21 passing for 131 yards and two TDs. Backup Kerry Joseph completed 3-of-4 passes for 36 yards while No. 3 Eric Ward missed the only pass he attempted.

JJ, I love u more & more everyday, u make me so happy. I'm blessed to be with u & be starting a family. We have our whole lives ahead of us & I couldn't imagine anyone else beside me. GRUMPY

Reggie, I Think Your Lovely ;) DONATELLA

Lucky 7, Hope they publish this so you can read it on the train. Have a happy swords day! RUNNIEBUNNIE

Dear Charles, It was awhile ago, but I was a fool that morning. To be honest, I was a little overwhelmed and not thinking. Two seconds after you left, the conversation caught up to me and I wanted you to come back so I could apologize. So if you can forgive my tactlessness, I would love to go out for some intelligent conversation with you. Regretfully, BOOKSTORE GAL

Today's horoscope

For today's crossword answers and for expanded horoscopes, go to metronews.ca

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 If you sit back and wait for good things to come your way, they will. Enjoy your good fortune. You deserve it.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 A friend will ask you for relationship advice. Make it clear your advice doesn't come with a guarantee.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 Honesty is essential if you are to resolve an issue that has been dragging on for weeks.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 Something will happen today that shakes your faith in your five senses. You have a sixth one, too.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug.23 The Sun in Virgo will help you cash in on your insights and ingenuity today.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22 Mercury moves back into your birth sign today, helping you to make sense of things that too often seem random or meaningless.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 Don't take it personally if a friend is critical today. He or she is most likely more annoyed with him or herself.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 Be more adventurous today and don't worry too much if you tread on toes — that's what toes are for.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 What happens over the weekend will challenge you to up your game. You're a mover and shaker.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 You will have to leave something behind over the next few days. It will soon be replaced, no worries.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20. You will be on the go from dawn to dusk today. This evening, you'll really speed up. SALLY BROMPTON
